

STEELS CREEK COMMUNITY NOTES - NO 124 (December 2016- January 2017) 'FIND OUT WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE VALLEY'

<http://steelscreek.vic.au>

IN THIS EDITION:

Not so much in this edition, as the end of the year approaches the "busyness" of Christmas has our focus on family; as such often the social or community engagements take 2nd place (as they should).

Many of the local groups slow down or stop over Christmas and into the New Year. Where the information has been sent it has been included on the calendar but please check with the organizers of each group for specific details or check the calendar at <http://steelscreek.vic.au>

Note from the editor

The Jolly thing is a newsletter and as such is full of articles of interest to our community of people. Entertaining stories are always welcomed whether true or fictional as are photos of the area (preferably, together with a story) or to be used if they happen to suit the articles submitted.

Promotion material will be considered for local businesses but only if there is value to the community, local groups' submissions are very welcome. Personal stories must be submitted by the person involved and all items must be emailed to scjollything@gmail.com

Thank you

On Saturday 21st January starting at 5pm and going to about 8pm (or whenever the chat and wine runs out) we will be visiting Brockspur Eco farm at 57 Harvey road Steels Creek where Ed and Amanda Williams will show us their goat dairy herd (including milking – you might even get to assist). This will be followed by a social BBQ dinner.

We ask that you either bring a plate of salad, nibbles or dessert to share and the SCLG will provide bread and meat.
BYO drinks.

RSVP is required to allow for catering and is open to the whole community

Brockspur Eco-farm Story

Edd and I brought our property in 1979 after migrating from England the year before. Land here sold cheaply in those days but even so we started our life here under a shed roof with no power, or amenities at all. We were young then and even with three small children we were happier living outside than in a suburb.

In England we lived on a smallholding with chooks, dairy goats and a horse and cart. Growing vegetables on the Yorkshire moors was challenging and we hoped that the milder Yarra Valley climate would make our self-sufficient life easier.

We soon discovered that Australia is a land of extremes and we began the slow process of adapting to the new environment. I have never lost my joy at being able to pick my own citrus fruit and walk each day surrounded by multi coloured parrot type birds but we had a lot to learn about growing food and animals in mineral depleted soils.

Our plan was to have a commercial goat farm, so we built up our herd numbers and constructed a dairy. It was a large operation for those days with a refrigerated bulk tank and swing over milking machines. I started work at 6am every day and worked for two hours before organising the children and getting them off to school. The day was spent working on paddocks and vegetables and then we milked again before cooking tea in the evening. I will never forget the morning Australia won the America's cup. A friend turned up in the milking parlour with a bottle of champagne and a radio so we could listen as the boats sailed over the finish and celebrate!

In the nineties we left the farm with friends and our children and went to work in the Tanami desert taking our youngest son, Josh. This was the best adventure of my life and I shall always be grateful that I had the opportunity to live with Aboriginal people and learn about their culture. We also had time to read and think things over so that when we returned to the farm five years later we had more ideas to try.

At this stage I did the Permaculture Design course with Graeme George. At last I had found a group of people who had similar ideas about how to live. Now we could begin sharing knowledge with others and things progressed fast. With the help of Wwoofers we set up in business as a host farm. This was great fun and we met interesting people from all over the world.

This period ended in 2009 with the bush fires. We felt as if thirty years of effort had vanished overnight. Oh well, at least this time we knew what to do, so we started again from scratch. Luckily my eldest son, Alvyn, is an architect and he helped us design a new house and sheds. Our house is designed like a cave and stays at about 22 degrees all year round and we have included many features that we think will help in the case of future fires. Sheep keep the grass under control on our roof and we still have a few goats and have a dairy to make cheese.

The ruins of our old house have been adapted to provide an outdoor living area complete with shelter shed, kitchen and pizza oven. The old garden has been retained as a food forest and chooks live in near-by orchards.

Steels Creek Art Group

Spring has been a busy time for our artists. In addition to our usual Thursday afternoon sessions, we held our very first workshop on Saturday 29 October. Janet Hayes was our guest artist and she introduced our class of 10 into the wonders of pastel painting. For some of us this was the first time we had ventured into the pastel medium, but Janet has had a lot of experience both as an artist and as a teacher and we all thoroughly enjoyed the experience. We are working on our next workshop in early February trying our hands at portraiture with Raylene Sharp. Attached are a couple of photos of the group during the workshop and just look how hard we are concentrating! Once again we were reminded of just what a great resource we have with the Community Centre. Art classes on Tuesdays have now finished for the year.

More generally, there are a couple of sculpture events in our area. The first of these is the Toolangi Sculpture Trail based on the Forest Discovery Centre in Toolangi. The main events were held over the weekend of 20/21 November, but the bush trail sculptures and track will remain until the forest reclaims them. A great excuse for a walk in the bush. The other is the Yering Station sculpture exhibition which closes on 5 December, so you just might catch it if you're quick.

We can report that the Steels Creek group will be participating in the Yarra Valley Open Studios next year. This event is taking a new format. Three regions, Healesville, Yarra Glen and Warburton will each open their studios for a weekend from September to November. Steels Creek will be part of the Yarra Glen weekend in early October. More about that later. And finally, 2017 will see the next Yarra Glen Art Show in early March, so all you artists get painting.

Steels Creek Garden club

The garden club would like to thank the community and friend who came to support this year's flower show and plant sale. The day had the feel of a country fair, lots of new ideas featured on stalls, plenty of bargain for all. People come back each year just to catch up with old friends over coffee and home baked treats. The day finished with the raffle and people went home with all sorts of treasures. We raised an outstanding amount $3262.60, the most of any year. It's been a fantastic year, we have a wonderful, enthusiastic club of gardeners and we would like to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a safe and healthy New Year, Jill Hess
